2017 Junior Faculty & Student Presentation Awards

The Association of Clinical and Translational Statisticians (ACTStat) announces a call for applications for awards to recognize junior faculty and students studying statistical problems relevant to clinical and translational science. The association will select one junior faculty member and one student to present invited talks, each 30 minutes in duration, at the 2017 ACTStat Annual Meeting. This meeting will take place July 29-30 in Baltimore, MD, just prior to the Joint Statistical Meetings (JSM). The meeting provides an excellent opportunity to network with researchers interested in enhancing the design, implementation, and analysis of clinical and translational studies.

Awards will consist of a $250 honorarium as well as waived registration fees to attend (this award does not include JSM registration).

Applicants will be selected based on the merit of the statistical research as well as its generalizability to clinical and translational science. Applicants need not be members of ACTStat to be considered. Junior faculty should have rank at or below Assistant Professor (or equivalent). Students should be enrolled as a full-time student at a university at either the undergraduate or graduate level.

Applications are due no later than March 6, 2017, and should consist of:

1. Current Curriculum Vitae
2. Structured abstract describing work to be presented (not to exceed 2 pages and 500 words; figures and tables can be included provided the entire abstract does not exceed page or word limits)
3. A letter of support from the department chair (for junior faculty), or from the advisor (for students), guaranteeing support for travel to the conference should the applicant be selected.

Applications should be e-mailed to Dr. Rickey Carter, President-Elect, Association of Clinical and Translational Statisticians (president_elect@actstat.org).

Recipients will be announced and emailed personally by April 17, 2017.
